Making it Right gives the concept a different spin: Product managers should strive for the shape of a capital “I.” One can be visionary and flexible (the

From Amazon: "Product management is one of the most exhausting, exhilarating, stressful, and rewarding careers out there. It's not for the faint of heart. It's for people who want to move mountains. It swallows some whole, but others derive endless invigoration and passion from the pace and the impact and the glory and the huge potential for failure as well as success.

management for a startup world . . .~~

Product management is usually introduced in an organization once there is such a high level of internal enthusiasm and chaos that the leaders aren't sure how to handle it any more. And then everyone looks to the product manager to "manage stuff." – Rian van der Merwe, Making It Right: Product Management For A Startup World

Once you've identified your customers and their needs, and the impact(s) you're trying to have on them, only then should you focus on how to execute the right product. Once we have solved the first set of needs, we do not just stop there: this process is repeated at every stage of the product. Make It Right!
